J-Punch bangs out catchy electronic tunes from his future box for all kinds reasons. He scores features such as N10N's True Skin (2012) ( acquired by Amazon Studios) and two upcoming episodic series Product Wars and Tokyo Red for the newly launched Black Pills network.

In 2016, he produced the original score for Puuba' s indie video game The Metronomicon, with help from his buddy Dave Moonshine. That guy also worked with him to release the downtempo / alternative chill - out albums Stick Figure Guy (2013 ) and Maximum Exertion (2015).

This summer, J-Punch and Dave Moonshine unveil The Kodiak Princess, an epic synthwave adventure for your ears and booty. Building on their long-standing appreciation for retro electronic music production styles and newfound bandwagoning of vaporwave and '80s tom fills, and ignoring for a moment J-Punch's unhealthy fixation with Nicolas Cage, the duo has managed to create a moving experience you will never forget.

The Kodiak Princess is THE album of our time. Be warned - you cannot unhear this. Dance to it, or sit still. The cloud will judge you regardless. The Kodiak Princess is available 7/15 on iTunes, Apple Music, Spotify, Tidal, Pandora, all the apps!

Testimonials

“The surprisingly earnest, emotional vocals on Hook The Captains Ill Follow You caught this listener, bred on insincere Deep House, completely off-guard. The track must be heard to be believed.”
-Jive Magazine

“This is top quality stuff and will devastate the more intelligent dance floors.”
-Xpander Magazine

“His productions are strong and he gets better with each release.”
-Progressive Sounds

“Moody, deep, exotic, and sexy.”
-Resident Advisor

“Gorgeous, and I mean absolutely 10/10”
-Release Records

“J-Punch has released on what seems like a list of the coolest labels around.”
-365 Magazine

“This supersolid EP is a candy-coated daisy chain of genre splicing. 5/5”
-BPM Culture Magazine
